BALLADS OF THE ROBIN.

How sweet the robin's song
In the silent afternoon!
Gray leaves and gold among,
How sweet the robin's song,
Bringing a tender throng
Of memories by his tune.
How sweet the robin's song
In the silent afternoon!

Old thoughts come back again,
Old dreams that once beguiled us.
In soft and pensive strain
Old thoughts come back again;
Loves, too dear to remain
Dead, that so sweetly whiled us.
Old thoughts come back again,
Old dreams that once beguiled us.

Hearts, do we weep no tears?
Mournfulness mellowed by time.
Plaintive, the past appears,
Hearts, do we weep no tears
For the loved of late years?
Robin sings on in the lime.
Hearts, do we weep no tears?
Mournfulness mellowed by time.

But we do not forget,
A shadow lies 'neath our smile.
The living holds us yet,
But we do not forget,
God sees our souls' regret.
The world and the flesh beguile,
But we do not forget,
A shadow lies 'neath our smile.

A Bohemian Romance

How Eusebius Smith Came to a Decision as to a Publisher of His Novel.

The publishing firm of Lansing & Lane was exceedingly anxious to obtain a book manuscript from the popular young author, Eusebius Smith.

Young Smith had gone up like a rocket, so to speak, and was now scintillating broadcast in the firmament, with no apparent exhaustion of pyrotechnics nor intention of returning darkly to earth, after the manner of the proverbial stick. He had sprung into "immediate and gratifying popularity" according to the reviewers, upon the publication of his first volume, "The Wings of Salt," and was, therefore, a typical modern man of letters, worshiped by all femininity with a kind of Hobsonian hysteria and surreptitiously envied by every man jack of his own sex and particularly of his own profession.

To announce a new volume of Eusebius Smith, Lansing & Lane perceived, would be the crowning achievement of the year for any American publisher. It would be the talk of the book world, heralded and advertised far and near. The sales would immediately advance by overlapping thousands toward the phenomenal, and all the literary and trade journals would be describing the clangor, by day and by night, of multiplied lightning presses upon the tons of white paper flowing into Eusebius Smith's new book. That Mr. Smith already had a book manuscript on the eve of completion all the literary gossips averred. The interesting question was, What publisher would get it?

Presumably the Chapwells, said everybody. The Chapwells had published Mr. Smith's two former volumes and pushed them, or at least steered them, to enormous sales. But popular men of letters are freaky. You can't depend on them, especially if they are young. Variety is the spice of life, even in the matter of publishers, and, though an author has been well served, he is never quite sure that he may not be served better by another agent. So, while the Chapwells were rubbing their hands with mingled expectation and nervousness, the other publishers were guardedly putting their best foot forward, in the customary approaches to the literary lion of the day.

Mr. Eusebius Smith complacently allowed himself to be wined and dined, went to ride with the ladies of rich publishers' families, tried the shooting on various choice preserves, and, in fact, accepted all the delicate courtesies extended him in a manner as affably unconscious as that which marked the proffer of them.

But in the meanwhile he was debating. The Messrs. Chapwells had treated him fairly enough in the matter of royalties on his first two volumes and had made him a handsome cash offer for the third—but there were others. Richards had made him a better cash offer by $500. (Richards! Bah!) Lansing Lane produced much better looking books than the Chapwells, real works of art, externally, whereas the Chapwells' books were mere blocks of paper and pasteboard—clay paper at that. But Lansing & Lane were chary of advertising and indifferent about pushing a book. Furthermore, they had fallen out of touch with the booksellers, having refused to allow the latter the customary underselling privilege. Lansing & Lane provided choice, select books for the select few—books of literary flavor, without literary substance, the cream puffs of literature. Their books were notoriously unsalable and were commonly printed from the type in editions of 250, half of which found their way to parlor tables and the luxurious dens of literary men of leisure and the other half to the omnivorous junk bag. No; it would be suicidal to give the new manuscript to Lansing & Lane. Even his own popularity, modestly reflected Mr. Smith, would scarcely float a book after having their imprint.

Still there was an undeniable fascination in looking over the new issues of this firm, each one a unique model of dainty book designing. It was generally admitted that no house could compete with Lansing & Lane in respect to artistic bookmaking.

Eusebius Smith had to drop in at their offices every few hours, in spite of himself, to see what new delight for the eye and the touch was on the point of coming out. This tendency on his part was, of course, warmly encouraged by both Mr. Lansing and Mr. Lane, and the leather upholstered easy chair, looking westward through the vista of small rooms occupied by the firm, was always waiting for him, with the latest publications arranged on a stand near by.

Lansing & Lane were distinctively English in their tastes and surroundings. Their offices consisted of a suit of small, low rooms, up stairs, opening directly into each other from east to west and furnished "den fashion," which, as the reader well knows, implies rugs, couches, heavy hangings, bric-a-brac, and the like, bathed in a rich, winelike glow of intercepted sunlight.

As one sat in the big, leather covered chair of the "den," looking westward through the several rooms, there was one window, at the end of all, left uncurtained, and on bright afternoons the sun always poured through this west window in a flood of glory. Eusebius Smith, lounging in the big chair, could not help seeing, day after day, a certain patch of brighter gold in the midst of the sunlight. It was a woman's shining head, always with the face turned away from him, bending over some absorbing work, behind a sort of counter that concealed all of the fair toiler but her head and neck.

At first the young author was aware of this patch of gold merely in a sort of subcouscious fashion—pleasing, but not mentally notable. Then one day he discovered it as a material for a passing thought—recognized it as a girl's head, crowned with remarkably fine, abundant, shining hair, coiled like a coronal.

The next time he dropped in and saw it he wondered who this girl might be, what she might be doing, always bending so absorbedly over her hidden task. Then later on a strange curiosity seized him to get a glimpse of her profile to see if she were beautiful. He would often lie back and peer over the top of a book, hoping that the magnetism of his fixed gaze might cause the unknown divinity to turn her golden head ever so little and reveal the invisible features. But the patient worker never yielded to his gaze, if, indeed, she were aware of it. There was just the patch of gold in the afternoon sunlight, beautiful, shining as a dream. What a lovely mystery!

In the meanwhile Eusebius Smith held back his manuscript and dreamed. It was a new sensation for him to actually dream in life and not on paper, to have a personal and not a literary romance taking form in his consciousness day and night.

And well could he afford to loiter and dream in his bachelor apartments on royalties netting him $1,000 a month. There was no need of haste. Life seemed to him beautiful and leisurely. It was charming to spend one's mornings browsing in the libraries and one's afternoons lounging in the big chair at Lansing & Lane's. Idealism is always delightful. It is so sweet to have a patch of gold in one's life!

Various are the ways of falling in love. Eusebius Smith's way was characteristic of him; he imagined himself into it; he fell into it from an easy chair.

"The sunset is really fine through our west window," said Mr. Lane one day, following the rapt eyes of the literary lion.

"I find a kind of perpetual sun glory there," replied Eusebius Smith dreamily.

"Yes," said Mr. Lane. "It certainly is a bright corner all the afternoon."

"Who does your book designing, Mr. Lane?" asked the author abruptly and with so loud a voice that Mr. Lane started. Was there not a little nervous motion of the patch of gold also? Eusebius Smith sat looking straight westward. It was a strange way to press a question.

"It is done by a very clever young woman in our employ," replied the publisher, after a moment's hesitation.

"Well, Mr. Lane," cried the literary lion in a startlingly loud and roaring voice, "I must say that I think it is desperately"—

He stopped short and with eager, fixed gaze awaited the inevitable result. The patch of gold swayed, vacillated and then turned flashingly for an instant in the sun.

"Fine!" finished the author, with a quality of tone and intensity of feeling that astonished and delighted Mr. Lane. "I am going to give you my latest manuscript," added Eusebius Smith, "on condition that your clever book designer makes it the chef d'oeuvre of her life. Understand?"

"Perfectly!" cried Mr. Lane, rising and rubbing his hands delightedly. "Archer, will you ask Miss Torrey to step here, please?"

"Now," said Mr. Eusebius Smith (it being six months later), "what design have you conceived for the volume of life—our life—my little Golden Hair?"

They were standing in the sunlight of the west window, and once more the lover saw only the snowy neck and the bowed coronal of gold.

"A fireplace and two easy chairs," came presently the shy answer.

"Admirable!" cried he.

And there ended bachelordom and Bohemia for them both.—Exchange.

She Was Very Foolish.

Some time ago a woman died at Dendermonde, near Ghent, leaving the whole of her property to her niece, Rosalie V. The latter was constantly worried by the other members of the family, who had been excluded from the inheritance.

Recently the young woman received the amount of the legacy, consisting of 25 1,000 franc notes ($5,000) and the deeds of a house. In the afternoon the disappointed relatives again visited her and worried her to such an extent that, losing all control over herself, she picked up the deeds and the whole of the bank notes and threw them into the fire.

In a few moments nothing remained of the little fortune but a few ashes.

Sydney Smith's Prescription.

The late Henry Reeve, C. B., D. C. L., for many years leader writer of the London Times and until his death editor of the Edinburgh Review, has narrated much amusing gossip of the celebrities of his acquaintance in his "Memoirs and Correspondence." The book contains one great rarity—a new story of Sydney Smith.

Mr. Reeve was dining one night at a house where the other distinguished guests included Macaulay and Sydney Smith. Macaulay was at that time laying society waste with his waterspouts of talk. People in his company were always bursting for want of an opportunity of dropping a word, and this was not an exceptional occasion.

At length, dinner being over, Sydney Smith, Reeve and a few others went away by themselves, and immediately got on the overpowering subject of Macaulay.

"He confounds soliloquy and colloquy," said Reeve.

"He is a book in breeches," Smith declared.

"The very worst feature in Macaulay's character is his appalling memory," said Reeve.

"Aye, indeed," said Sydney Smith. "Why, he could repeat the whole 'History of the Virtuous Bluecoat Boy,' in three volumes, post 8vo, without a slip."

After a pause, as if of consideration, the witty divine added, "He should take two tablespoonfuls of the waters of Lethe every morning to correct his retentive powers."

Overdid It.

"I understand she married him to reform him."

"That was it. And she did the job so thoroughly that now he doesn't like the kind of woman he liked when he married her and is trying to get a divorce."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Mixture of Motives.

A correspondent sends us the following unique—at least we hope it is unique—certificate given by a Welsh coroner on the death of a woman: "Fell into the Glamorganshire canal, whereby she died, and being of unsound mind did kill herself."—London Chronicle.

Driven to It.

"My daughter's employer drove the poor girl to matrimony."

"In what way?"

"He worked her so hard that she married the first man who asked her."

"Who was the man?"

"Her employer."—Chicago Record.

A Hurried Wedding.

Here is a faithful report of a unique wedding ceremony in the wilds of Kentucky:

"George Washington Columbus, do you take this woman to be— Hush! What was that?"

Deep silence for a few seconds, followed by another section of the service. Then, raising his hand, the preacher said solemnly:

"As a minister of the gospel— Listen; I think I hear a wildcat!"

Deep silence for ten seconds.

"I pronounce you— Listen; that's a wildcat, sure—husband and wife."

And down the hill the party raced, with the preacher three lengths in the lead and running easy.—Atlanta Constitution.

Red Hair the Best Wear.

Why are redheaded people less subject to baldness than those with fair or brown hair? An English physician has answered this conundrum.

The hair of the redheaded is relatively thick, one red hair being as thick as five blond or three brown hairs. With 30,000 red hairs the scalp is well thatched. With the same number of blond hairs one is almost bald. It takes 160,000 blond and 105,000 brown hairs to cover adequately an ordinary head.

Moral Effect.

Mrs. Greene—Do you always give your little boy castor oil for a cold?

Mrs. Gray—Yes, I give it for its moral effect exclusively.

Mrs. Greene—For its moral effect?

Mrs. Gray—Yes, it will have an influence upon him not to catch another cold.—Boston Transcript.

HIDDEN FOES.

Spanish bushwhackers, in the Cuban war, covered themselves with palmetto leaves, and, so disguised, lurked among the bushes undetected by the American soldiers. Diseases as deadly as the bullet from the bushwhacker's rifle, often lurk behind familiar disguises. A "common cold" such as you have "thrown off" a score of times, may now turn out to be the uncommon cold which you cannot throw off. Then you have taken the first steps in a path that ends in consumption.

The great protection against that hidden foe, disease, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It protects the vulnerable points, the stomach, lungs, liver and blood. When the blood is in a healthy condition, disease germs cannot find any permanent lodgement. When the stomach is sound and strong the life is sound and strong also. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is not only the best medicine for impure blood, weak nerves, weak lungs and weak stomach, but is a strictly temperance preparation. No alcohol or whisky in it. No syrup or sugar either. Still it retains its curative powers perfectly in any climate. Dr. Pierce invites you to counsel with him by letter free of all cost. He has treated and cured thousands of cases, many of them doubtless just like yours. It costs you nothing to lay your case before him. Write to-day. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Charles A. Moore, of Fivemile, Mason Co., W. Va., writes: "I had been afflicted with lung trouble for two years. I tried all the surrounding physicians but they did me no good. After a long period I bought your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and after taking four bottles I was entirely cured. I now feel stronger than I ever did."

Constipation, the cause of so many diseases, is quickly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They regulate and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels. Accept no substitute.

SONOMA, SEPTEMBER 30, 1899.

S. S. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR

OTTO VON GELDERN, who was recently appointed consulting engineer of water works by the City Trustees, came up from San Francisco last Sunday to look over the field, preliminary to reporting on the water supply of the Schocken and other artesian wells in this place. He will be in town again to-morrow and will make a practical test of their flowing capacity and secure other data for a better water supply. When Mr. Von Geldern will have made his final report to the Trustees the question of bonding the town for a municipal water system will again be submitted to the people. This town needs water—and needs it bad—for fire and domestic purposes. No relief need be expected from private sources and the only thing that the people of this town now have to fall back upon is municipal ownership. We trust that in the event of another election that no one having the welfare of Sonoma in view will be deceived by another fake water proposition from the opponents of municipal ownership.

IN the County Clerk's office at the present time some figuring is being done upon a very important law which goes into effect on January 1st, 1900. To make a long story short, commencing on January 1st a complete new registration of electors commences and will continue right along until within forty days of any election, when, for the electors in the district in which the election takes place, it will cease. The new Act was approved last March. By reason of its requirements duplicate certificates of every registration must be made. Under its provisions the statement made by an elector at the time of his registration with the County Clerk will be more comprehensive than heretofore. He must not only give the name of the street or avenue upon which he resides but must give the number of the house, and if he is not the proprietor, he must give the location and number of the rooms he occupies. It will be seen that as there will be a city election in Sonoma, Santa Rosa and other cities in this county next April and the new registration commences on January 1st, that only about two months time will be allowed for city electors to place their names upon the roll, as registration for them will close forty days before the date of the election. When a reporter looked in at the County Clerk's office Wednesday morning Chief Deputy Nagle had the law spread out before him, and was busy figuring on the big job which will greet the County Clerk's office with the dawn of the new year.—Press Democrat.

Open Season for Ducks.

The open season for ducks commences at midnight to-night. Ducks are not quite so plentiful in the marshes as they were at the opening of the shooting season last year but for all that great preparations are being made by the members of the Alameda and other gun clubs having preserves in the marsh lands bordering Sonoma and Napa creeks for getting their share of the birds. The local nimrod will be there but his chances will be few and far between for securing a bag, as almost every pond and slough is now held by lease by the more enterprising sportsmen of San Francisco, Alameda and Santa Rosa. In so far as ducks are concerned the local hunter's name will be soft mud this season.

The Native Sons of Glen Ellen will give a musical and literary entertainment in their hall at that place this evening. Hon. Emmet Seawell and Grand Trustee Dunbar of Santa Rosa will be present and take part in the programme, which will be followed by a hop.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Most of the High School students attended the entertainment given by the Grammar School last night.

A vote of thanks should be extended Lily Steiger for her kindness in supplying grapes to the students daily.

To the young lady who took pains to call at the INDEX-TRIBUNE office in quest of information as to who was the author of the "High School Notes" we extend hearty congratulations.

Prof. Weed, assisted by the boys of the Junior Class, sought to beautify the appearance of the High School grounds, one day this week, by trimming the trees and cleaning up and burning the rubbish left by the Swiss celebration.

On Monday last the much-looked-for debate on the conduct and administration of Warren Hastings was held by the senior class. The failure of the class to appoint a Sergeant-at-Arms at the door to keep away reporters, the curious and the like, enabled me to take down some notes of the debate, where, through the key hole, "I beheld them unbeheld, and unheard, heard all, and saw Prof. Weed judge of all." The debate was held in the south room of the High School and for nearly an hour the room in some manner resembled the Athenian assembly where Nicias and Alcibiades met and debated over the expediency of sending an Athenian armament against the Syracusians, or where Cicero thundered denunciations against Cataline. Warren Hastings character, his dealings with the different tribes and people of India and the manner in which he governed was carefully reviewed by the young debaters with much oratorical skill and preciseness. Joseph Clarke, the leading counsel for the prosecution, gave the opening address—an introduction leading up to all the accusations. He pictured the condition of the wretched inhabitants of India with great vividness and showed what means and power Hastings used to accomplish his dastardly end, and summarily reviewed the "sad story full of the wailing cry of weakness, full of the agonizing appeals of the distressed inhabitants of India to their gods crying out for vengeance upon their cruel and foreign oppressor." In conclusion Mr. Clarke said, "I impeach Warren Hastings in the name of justice, in the name of future generations, in the name of equal rights to all and special privileges to none, for carrying on the government of India contrary to the laws of nations and of Christianity." Mr. Clarke was followed by Horace Appleton, the eminent counsel of the defense. Horace vehemently denounced the remarks of the prosecution as being irrelevant and incompetent, and proceeded to show with great eloquence and oratorical power the nobility of Hastings character. The other members of the class spoke briefly and to the point and acquitted themselves with much credit and honor.

Mysterious Performance.

Borel's Mystifiers have come and gone. They performed here Tuesday and Wednesday evening. Those who were present and witnessed their spiritualistic cabinet act are more than mystified at seeing the impossible performed right before their very eyes. The Borels are more than clever—they are the very incarnation of the mysterious, wierd and uncanny. The acts they performed are inexplicable and will convince anybody that things are not what they appear to be.

and I am afraid I have inherited it. I do not feel well; I have a cough; my lungs are sore; am losing flesh. What shall I do?

Your doctor says take care of yourself and take plain cod-liver oil, but you can't take it. Only the strong, healthy person can take it, and they can't take it long. It is so rich it upsets the stomach. But you can take

SCOTT'S EMULSION

It is very palatable and easily digested. If you will take plenty of fresh air, and exercise, and SCOTT'S EMULSION steadily, there is very little doubt about your recovery.

There are hypophosphites in it; they give strength and tone up the nervous system while the cod-liver oil feeds and nourishes.

COUNTY NEWS ITEMS.

T. C. Noriel is very ill at the county hospital, Santa Rosa. He was poisoned while picking hops presumably by the vines, and Dr. Shearer states that he cannot recover. There have been numerous cases of hop poisoning this season, but so far as known Noriel's is the only one likely to result fatally. Noriel hails from Honolulu and is a half-caste.

W. J. Kennedy of San Francisco jumped with his nine-year old son from the returning Ukiah excursion train while it was passing the Seventh-street crossing, Santa Rosa, on Sunday evening and as a result the boy received a severe cut on the scalp. According to the man's story it was necessary for him to leave the train at Santa Rosa in order to catch the early morning train to Vallejo on Monday. As the train did not stop in Santa Rosa he performed the jumping act. He was not hurt himself, but the boy's head struck the ground with great force. The wound was dressed by a surgeon and on Monday morning father and son left for Vallejo.

The name "Mrs. Flewelling, San Francisco," appeared on the register of the Grand Hotel on Saturday evening, says the Press Democrat. The object of the lady's visit to Santa Rosa was to ascertain the whereabouts of her son whom she had not seen for thirteen years. In making inquiries she confided the information that she believed the lad was living with his father near Penngrove. Inquiry was made at Penngrove and it was learned that her supposition was correct. She said while here that she and her husband separated many years ago and that she had not seen her son since he was seven years of age. He is now twenty and a few weeks ago returned from the Philippines where he was in the volunteer service. She said that he had been told years ago that his mother was dead and that he would never see her again. A well known resident of Penngrove was consulted in the matter and a meeting between mother and son was arranged for Sunday afternoon and took place. Naturally enough the reunion of parent and child was most cordial. Young Flewelling has decided to go to San Francisco and reside with his mother.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

The Index-Tribune

SONOMA, SEPTEMBER 30, 1899.

The Town of Nogood.

[This town would be a mighty good abiding place for the anti-wafer advocates of Sonoma.]

My friend, have you heard of the town of Nogood,
On the banks of the River Slow,
Where blooms the Waitawhile flower fair,
Where the Sometimeorother scents the air
And the soft Goeasies grow?

It lies in the Valley of Watsthause,
In the province of Letterslide.
That Tiredfeeling is native there.
It's the home of the reckless Idontcare.
Where the Giveitups reside.

It stands at the bottom of Lazyhill
And is easy to reach, I declare.
You've only to hold up your hands and glide
Down the slope of Weakwill's toboggan slide
To be landed quickly there.

The town is as old as the human race,
And it grows with the flight of years.
It is wrapped in the fog of idlers' dreams,
Its streets are paved with discarded schemes,
And sprinkled with useless tears.

The Collegebred fool and the Richman's heir
Are plentiful there, no doubt.
The rest of its crowd are a motley crew,
With every class except one in view—
The rookiller is barred out.

The town of Nogood is all hedged about
By the mountains of Despair.
No sentinel stands on its gloomy walls,
No trumpet to battle and triumph calls,
For cowards alone are there.

My friend from the dead-alive town of Nogood
If you would keep far away,
Just follow your duty through good and ill
Take this for your motto, "I can; I will,"
And live up to it each day.

—New Haven Rsgister.

One of Our California Boys.

Arthur Schell, who recently returned from Manila with his regiment—the First California—has returned to a civilian's life and is now residing on the Schell farm near Embarcadero. Mr. Schell who has, traveled extensively and is a highly educated young gentleman, was in town one day this week and favored this office with a call. In speaking of the exploits of the First California boys in Manila Mr. Schell very modestly refrained mentioning himself, although he took part in the taking of Manila and was in several other serious engagements. He remarked among other things that in fighting the Filipinos, deer hunting wasn't in it, in so far as excitement was concerned, as in the former case the hunting and shooting were not all on one side.

A large number of Sonoma Valley people will take in the excursion of the California Northwestern Railway to the Mechanics' Fair. Tickets will be good to return on all trains up to and including next Monday.

Clarence Nauman, the well-known wing shot of San Francisco and Alameda, is in town, the guest of Mrs. Amelia Bates. Mr. Nauman recently broke 50 clay pigeons in the Los Angeles shoot without a miss and carried off a valuable trophy for his achievement.

Herman Lauen, a new-comer to this valley, is now located on his 113 acre-farm west of town adjoining the O'Brien place. After a vexatious delay of nearly a month he received an abstract of title to the property last Wednesday. Mr. Lauen formerly lived in Harney county, Oregon.

A jolly party of young people assembled at the home of Miss Theo. Bates last Saturday evening, where they were charmingly entertained. Music, both ragtime and sentimental was enjoyed by all. This was followed by dancing and feasting. Then came more vocal music in which all joined with a will. It can be said that this was one of the most cheerful and congenial house parties that has taken place in Sonoma for many months.

JUDGE CHENEY'S COURT.

Fined for Trespass — Attachment Suits Commenced.

Peter Batnale of San Francisco, who has been rusticating at Vineburg the past week, was arrested by Constable Ohm last Wednesday, charged with misdemeanor and trespass. The prisoner, whose offense was trespassing on the Burris farm, was taken before Judge Cheney and smilingly plead guilty to the charge and was fined $8. He paid the fine and went on his way rejoicing, but he will be more careful in future how he enters uninvited upon the premises of strangers.

John O'Brien has commenced suit against Wm. Murray to recover the sum of $200 for rent alleged to be due from defendant from September 14th, 1898, to September 14th, 1899. He has also attached sixty tons of hay belonging to Mr. Murray, whose whereabouts at present is unknown.

Kate C. Carriger has also commenced suit against Wm. Murray to recover the sum of $299. The complaint filed with the court alleges that on the 15th day of February, 1897, at Sonoma, Cal., the defendant by his promissory note promised to pay to John O'Brien or bearer $434 one day after date. That said John O'Brien sold and delivered said note to plaintiff. That the defendant has not paid same or any part thereof, except the sum of $100 and the further sum of $35 remitted by the plaintiff. That the plaintiff is now the owner and holder of said promissory note. Wherefore plaintiff demands judgment against defendant for the sum of $299, interest and cost of suit. Mrs. Carriger also levied an attachment on that 60 tons of hay, which has also been attached by a Petaluma creditor of Mr. Murray.

The case of Wm. Stevens, arrested on complaint of J. S. Young, came up for hearing on Thursday afternoon. Judge Cheney, after listening to the evidence, promptly discharged Mr. Stevens, who is a young man of excellent reputation. His discharge met with the approval of every man in town if we except the complaining witness. The arrest was the outcome of a business transaction which was perfectly square and legitimate.

THE RIALTOS.

Will Give a Chaste Entertainment and Ball next Saturday Evening.

There will appear in Union Hall on Saturday evening, October 7th, for the first time in Sonoma, La Mildred Rialto, the great serpentine electric dancer; Baby Pauline, a wonderful little tot, who will appear in cake walk specialties, and other talent. The Rialtos are spoken very highly of as clever artists. In speaking of La Mildred Rialto's fire and butterfly dance the New York Herald says: "It is a dream of beauty and a marvel of stage mechanism." The Rialtos have relatives in this place with whom they are visiting and before taking their departure were prevailed upon to give one of their chaste entertainments to the people of this valley. After the performance there will be a grand ball. The general admission has been placed at only 25 cents to enable everybody to attend.

It contains no opiate nor narcotic in any form and may be given as confidently to the babe as to an adult. Return of Hunters.

Victor Sartori, S. Ciucci, Jo Keechler and Henry Weyl Jr. returned from their trip to Fort Ross and other points of interest in the northern part of Sonoma county last Monday after a week's outing. The party killed a couple of deer and report having had a very pleasant time while in camp.

WILL STOFEN HAS GONE TO MANILA.

Sails on the Transport Sherman as Signal Quartermaster.

Will Stofen, son of Capt. and Mrs. P. N. Stofen, and well-known to the younger set of Sonoma, left for Manila on the transport Sherman one day this week as Signal Quartermaster of the ship. The appointment of young Stofen to the responsible position is a just recognition of the ability of one of Sonoma county's brightest young men.

Disappearance of Wm. Murray.

Wm. Murray, the well-known dairyman, disappeared very suddenly one day last week and his whereabouts are unknown. He is accused by his creditors of having skipped out but his friends, of whom he has many in this valley, are loth to believe this.

The Petaluma Courier, in speaking of Mr. Murray's disappearance, says in its issue of Monday: "Two young ladies from the vicinity of Sonoma were here bright and early this morning on the trail of a man named Murray, who, it is alleged, skipped out several days ago and left a large number of bills unpaid. The two ladies are among the victims and hold some pretty good sized notes against the man they are looking for. They state that he was in this city for several days after leaving Sonoma, but nobody here seems to know anything about him."

Back From the War.

Friend McHarvey, the young soldier, arrived on the transport Zealandia from Manila on Friday morning of last week. He had been mustered out of the service before leaving the Philipines, and immediately upon disembarking from the ship hastened to his old home in Sonoma, being accompanied by his grandmother, Mrs. A. McHarvey, who was at the wharf in San Francisco to meet him.

Young McHarvey enlisted in Battery K, Third Artilley, and was subject to all the hardships of a soldier's life for about a year, being on the firing line a portion of the time. He returns home looking as natural as an old shoe and in the enjoyment of perfect health.

Winemaking Has Commenced.

Winemaking has commenced and in a few days every winery in this valley will be busy crushing grapes. The wine this season, owing to the remarkable favorable weather of the past two months, promises to be the finest that has ever been made in Sonoma valley for a number of years. The wineries that are now engaged in crushing grapes are those of Gundlach-Bundschu Co., C. Dresel, C. Aguillon, Geo. Engler, Ed. Steiger, J. Chauvet, J. Lounibos and a number of others.

Conductors Promoted.

Herman Fritz, conductor of the Sonoma Valley branch freight train of the California Northwestern Railway Company, has been promoted to the position of conductor on the main line. He takes the place of conductor Hunter, who has been appointed Assistant Superintendent of the road which he has served so faithfully and well for many years. Mr. Hunter will make his headquarters at Tiburon.

The pleasant effect and perfect safety with which ladies may use Syrup of Figs, under all conditions, make it their favorite remedy. To get the true and genuine article, look for the name of the California Fig Syrup Co. printed near the bottom of the package. For sale by all druggists.

The Latest Yarn.

A Pittsburg drummer tells this new yarn. I always carry a bottle of Kemp's Balsam in my grip. I take cold easily and a few doses of the Balsam always make me a well man. Everywhere I go I always speak a good word for Kemp. I take hold of my customers—I take old men and young men and tell them confidentially what I do when I take cold. At druggists, 25c. and 50c.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Marriage of Miss Margaret Church and Fred'k Schell.

An interesting wedding took place in San Francisco last Wednesday, the contracting parties were Miss Margaret Church of this place and Mr. Frederick A. Schell of Petaluma, the Rev. Mr. Fuendeling officiating. Miss Church is the handsome young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Church of this valley. Mr. Schell is a well-to-do farmer of Petaluma, always courteous and affable and in every way worthy of his charming bride. The bride was attired in a handsome white organdy over white silk. Arthur Schell, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Helen Church, gowned in white silk, acted as bridesmaid. After the ceremony the happy couple took the afternoon train for Del Monte, where they will remain one week. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Schell will reside in their new home in Petaluma.

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has just unearthed another band of counterfeiters in a suburb of New York City, and secured a large quantity of bogus $5 bills, which are so cleverely executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Things of great value are always selected by counterfeiters for imitation, notably the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has many imitators but no equals for common disorders like fevers, ague, malaria, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, nervousness and general debility. The Bitters sets thihgs right in the stomach and when the Stomach is in good working order it makes good blood and plenty of it. In this manner the Bitters get at the seat of strength and vitality, and restores vigor to the weak and debilitated. Beware of counterfeits when buying. Always go to reliable druggists who have the reputation of giving what you ask for.

An Excellent Sermon.

Last Sunday morning the writer listened to a most excellent sermon delivered by the Rev. Mr. Milliken of the Congregational Church of this town. The subject was "Creation and Our First Parents." We congratulate the people of Sonoma upon having the good fortune of securing so gifted a gentleman to fill the pulpit of the Congregational Church. His subject was handled in a most interesting and intelligent manner.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

H. H. GRANICE, Proprietor.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, SEPT. 30, 1899.

FOR HIS HONOR.

A freak of fortune made Florence Early an inmate of the gray house in front of the Washington county jail. The sheriff, a burly man of 40, had his mother and a crippled son of 8 years living with him. The old mother was continually afraid, and the helpless boy needed teaching. The sheriff advertised in the papers of the state for a companion and governess. A teachers' agency sent Florence Early to Riverdale.

One day he took her into the jail. It was a fearful place. One story was above ground. In this were kept the prisoners for minor offenses; in the other, a veritable dungeon, was a man confined for a capital offense. He was the son of a wealthy farmer and accused of the murder of both father and mother on the evidence that he had had a dispute with them the day before the foul deed.

Johnson Martin's was the strongest, most remote cell of the dungeon. He was allowed to see no one, and the sheriff himself carried him his food.

On the day the sheriff showed Florence Early through the jail she met the jailer, a man with a settled, stubborn look. Finally the sheriff led the way down the dark, close stairway and, unlocking a heavy door, ushered her into a dark corridor and showed her Johnson's cell.

"Miss Florence," he said, "I must go over to Berlin township after a man. I cannot be back before midnight. I want you to take care of Martin."

An hour later he was gone, and she had the key and his instructions.

Miss Early was reading aloud just before dinner when the servant came to tell her some one wanted to see her. She found a rough man in the hall, nervous and awkward.

"They say sheriff's gone over to Berlin, miss. How long will he be gone?"

"A few hours," replied Florence tersely.

The man looked at her and whispered quickly:

"I'm a friend of his'n. I come to tell him all McVaigh township's coming tonight after Martin. They've located Allen's hired girl, and she says she saw Johnson about 7 o'clock that night and not half a mile from the farm."

Florence Early felt an awful chill at her heart. Then the strong, kind face of the sheriff came before her. With an effort she replied:

"If you have a horse and know the way, ride to Berlin for your life. You shall be well paid. Don't lose a minute. Bring him here. I will keep the man till he comes."

She went to dinner calmly and afterward gathered up some delicacies and added them to the meal for Martin. She threw a light shawl over her head.

The jailer was in the hallway when she went down the steps. He looked troubled. She did not doubt he knew. The corridor seemed darker than ever. She set the lantern by the grating, opened it, and thrust into it the basket. A hand took it.

"Eat your dinner," she said gently. "Then I have something to say to you."

In ten minutes he came to the grating.

"They will try to take you from the jail tonight," she said simply. "Guilty or not guilty, if I save you will you give yourself up to Sheriff Torrence for trial?"

He looked her in the eyes.

"I am an innocent man," he cried hoarsely, "but before God I will stand trial if you save me from the mob!"

"Swear," she said. "Swear it to me."

He made the oath, and she left him.

Eleven o'clock came. Outside there was utter silence; then came the sound of many footsteps. The men of McVaigh township were not out for vain parade. They meant business.

A terrific battering came at the doors, the one level with the yard being attacked first. The jailer looked out from a small window in the old roof. It had been used for such purposes.

"We want Martin!" cried a voice. "And we know Torrence isn't here! Open the door or throw out the keys!"

"I can't do it!" shouted the jailer. "We'll fight it out! He's my blood kin!"

With a great shout the assault on the door began. The prisoners above the dungeon were wild with terror. What would not the mob do? The jailer unlocked their cells. They were half a dozen strong countrymen in for stealing chickens, hogs and getting drunk on Saturday nights.

"Men," he cried, "help me to barricade this door! The sheriff will come. We must gain time." So when the door fell in there was a barricade of iron beds, mattresses, tables, chairs, movable grating and planks.

It took a great many minutes to pass the barricade and to chop in the heavy door farther on. It took more to wrench and chop and pull out the cell door. A dark figure was crouched in the corner, silent as death.

"Mighty still, are you?" shrieked the leader, Johnson Martin's own cousin and the heir to the farm if he was hanged. "Come out here, you murderer!"

A dozen hands laid hold on the crouching figure. It was dragged, hauled, carried, forced up the stairs out into the yard.

"String him up! Here's a rope! Quick!"

Then a woman's shriek—awful, blood curdling—rang out once, again, again. The crowd fell back.

"Good God! What does this mean?"

They stood the figure up and raised lanterns high over it a second. It was a woman—a terror stricken woman, with her brown hair unloosened, falling over a man's suit of clothes.

A mighty shout, and in among them dashed horsemen, the burly sheriff at the head. He threw himself from his horse; he snatched the woman to his arms.

"Are ye men? This woman has saved my honor!" he cried. "Off, hounds! Thank God, Martin is safe! He is no murderer. The negro I tracked to Bear swamp today is the man. He had the old man's watch and money. For very shame, go home."

The crowd slunk away into the shadows. The sheriff carried a limp form into the house, and while he lavished every fond epithet upon her the erstwhile prisoner, in her attire, knelt and kissed the feet of the poor little governess.

There is a better jail now, but the people of the country have not yet asked for a better sheriff than the one whose wife well nigh gave her life for his honor.—Chicago News.

Notice of Business Change.

The old saying that "the unlooked-for always happens," may be true in the present instance. The Sonoma News is no more! Having sold the paper and its good will to Mr. Granice, the business and subscription books pass into his hands. Those who are in arrears for their paper will please pay Mr. Granice and those who have paid in advance will receive the INDEX-TRIBUNE to full extent of their subscriptions.

There are three reasons I might give for making this change. It is well known that I did not buy the News with the intention of running it myself. A person usually sells a commercial commodity when the price asked is accepted. The third reason is the more potent one—our patronizing territory is too limited to properly support two weekly newspapers.

But we do need and must have for the weal of the commonwealth one good, wide-awake paper, which shall be alive to the best interests of our people, and such a paper Mr. Granice will be able to furnish us providing he has the good will and support his paper merits. So we sincerely hope all our subscribers and patrons will lend a hand.

With a thank you to our friends and wishes for the success of the INDEX-TRIBUNE we break our quill.

E. E. THOMPSON.

A Wonderful Cure of Diarrhoea.

A prominent Virginia editor, who had almost given up, but was brought back to perfect health by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, says:

"I suffered with diarrhoea for a long time and thought I was past being cured. I had spent much time and money and suffered so much misery that I had almost decided to give up all hopes of recovery and await the result, but noticing the advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and also some testimonials stating how some wonderful cures had been wrought by this remedy, I decided to try it. After taking a few doses I was entirely well of that trouble, and I wish to say further to my readers and fellow-sufferers that I am a hale and hearty man to-day and feel as well as I ever did in my life.—O. A Minister's Mistake.

A city minister was recently handed a notice to be read from his pulpit. Accompanying it was a clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the matter. The clergyman started to read the extract and found that it began: "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure." This was hardly what he expected and, after a moment's hesitation, he turned it over, and foundon the other side the matter intended for the reading.

Cottonseed Meal.

Cottonseed meal cannot be fed to hogs, since it is almost sure to lead to disease if fed for more than five or six weeks. I do not know of any cases in which, when cottonseed meal has been used for steer feeding, that the droppings of steers so fed have proved injurious to hogs. Begin with not over two pounds per head daily, in addition to corn and roughage, and at no time allow the quantity of meal fed to exceed five pounds if the best results from its use are sought. The droppings should all be carefully saved, as they are very rich in the elements of fertility.—W. A. Henry.
